A. If you go into add-ons and search for Video Download Helper or video download and then pick it out of the store and download it, then you take those steps, sure.

Q. Okay. Then you are going to get it and then it is going to automatically download a copy into that folder?

A. No, sir, it is not automatic. You have to tell it you want to download the video.

Q. When the user downloads a video, does the video go somewhere else too? Is it copied to somewhere else?

A. Do you mean is it cached?

Q. Never mind that line of questioning. Let me ask you a few different questions. You notice the individual in 2M appears to be wearing a bra?

A. Yes, I did notice that, sir.

Q. Is that what would typically be known as a [redacted]?

A. I don't know that wearing a bra is the only -- again, I can't testify to that. I am a visual forensics expert, not an expert on human sexuality.

Q. Well, you have some expertise in pornography though and --

A. Thank you.

Q. Is that right?

A. I have seen -- I have seen a lot of pornographic videos, a lot of images. I have seen videos that -- that are labeled [redacted], sure.

Q. All right. And it's not -- [redacted] is a fairly common term

zero.scalpel.fuse.pl

FUSE driver in Perl for reading scalpel's audit.txt file and showing a file system that maps files it would have carved to a disk image -- this allows for zero-storage carving as you can browse and view files with only a 'scalpel -p' (preview, scalpel writes no files) -- tested under Ubuntu Linux 18.04

Useful for me anyway, maybe not for you, but if so then enjoy.

YOUR CODE IS BAD, AND YOU SHOULD FEEL BAD!

zero.scalpel.fuse.pl

- FUSE driver for zero-storage carving
- Uses output from scalpel -p
- Reasons why virtual carving is handy:
  - Low on storage / under-funded
  - Using a live Linux distro
  - Don't want every carvable file
  - Quick previews / carving tweaks

If time is short, you can see the planned demo at:

Kid, if you wanted to show a demo, maybe you ought to have fewer slides, huh?
